Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

That the global economy is slowing down is an understatement. This is more so when much of the world economic activity's fulcrum is oil. With oil prices falling below $28 per barrel and set to drop further – some suggest they could fall as low as $10 a barrel. The reason? Iran, a major oil producer, just free from sanctions imposed by the US, is all set to boost its crude output. The country has announced that it will increase its crude output by 500,000 barrels a day. With this, the global crude oil market is set for a glut and consequent collapse in oil prices.

Experts point to China as one of the main reasons for the slow down. The dragon economy has become a drag on the global economy. Growth slowed down to 6.9 per cent after the fourth quarter slowed to 6.8 per cent last year. This was exacerbated by a huge outflow of capital, a slide in the Yuan currency and stock market crashes. With many of the markets riding piggyback on the Chinese economy, demand fell everywhere and impacted the world economy at large. The latest forecast by the International Monetary Fund (IMF) cut its global growth forecast for 2016 at 3.4 per cent, down 0.2 per cent but put India's projected growth at 7.5 per cent, up from 7.3 per cent last year. So, as the dragon slows down, it could be the time of the resurgent tiger, cranked up by low oil prices.

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

The decision to hire retired teachers to meet the shortage of teaching staff is a welcome move. Education ministers from 18 states have agreed to hire teachers in this manner from April next. Opportunities will also be given to volunteers who are adequately qualified. Though termed an ad hoc measure, it is an effective and immediate solution to overcome the acute shortage of teachers. According to official estimates, the country is short of at least 10-12 lakh teachers. In some states like Karnataka, the problem is so acute that many government schools are in no position to complete the syllabus before the SSLC exams in March. Whatever arrangements the authorities concerned are making, are unlikely to benefit the students.

What has been agreed upon at the recent education ministers' meeting is not revolutionary. Already, states like Delhi and Odisha hire part-time or guest teachers to complement the regular staff. But, the Central and state governments must understand this cannot be a permanent solution. It is, in fact, unbelievable that in a country of India's size and resources, it is difficult to find adequate number of teachers. The need to have permanent teachers cannot be overemphasized. It is the prevalence of red tapism in the government, which is primarily responsible for the delay in recruiting staff. This year, for instance, Karnataka planned to recruit teachers on an emergency basis but a court case scuppered the plan. As a result, the availability of teachers in the state is in the ratio of 1:75 when, ideally, it should be 1:35. The increasing reluctance of states to spend on education is also reflected in the shortage.

46. Which one of the following is a welcome move for meeting the shortage of teaching staff?

- a) Hiring retired teachers.
- b) Hiring part-time or guest teachers.
- c) Increasing the number of schools in the states.

49. According to the passage, what is the prime cause of delay in recruiting teaching staff?

- d) None of the above
